

Abstract of the Disclosure

A method of producing a calibration wafer having at least a predetermined emissivity, including providing a wafer of semiconductor material; subjecting the bulk material of the wafer to doping with foreign atoms and/or generating lattice defects to obtain the predetermined emissivity; and coating the wafer to obtain a further optical characteristic.